Workshop on the Farm.

A farmer gives his experience and opinion upon the matter in the subjoined sensible talk.

How many farmers do we find that have not the ingenuity to repair a rake or other small implement. Were they brought up on a farm? Yes. Well then, why is it? Some may say they are of that unfortunate class of mortals that are not gifted with their share of ingenuity. This is a great mistake. If you will take the trouble to inquire of them how they spent their time when young, they will tell you farming. was their father a farmer? Yes, the best in the neighborhood, they may say. Well what did he employ himself and boys at on rainy days? Oh, nothing; when it rained too hard to work we generally spent our time in the village at the stores and tavern. You know that boys want rest sometimes. Very true but is there no other employment for boys than the tavern and stores? ..

Had the father had a workshop, with a selected lot of tools, would not those boys have had some job for a rainy day, such as a little cart, sleigh, wagon or boat to make or repair? There are very few boys who do not have such things to make. Thus by having a small workshop, boys soon acquire a taste to handle tools, and tinker up mnay little playthings of their own.

When older, the knowledge gained will be of great service to them in drawn on all principal cities. making and repairing implement on the farm. But there are habits Dr. J. T. STEPHENSON, which they acqure in spending their leisure time at the village, which are the ruin of many a prom-Ising boy; for where do we find a vil- Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Perlage now in which there is not one or more taverus, where the temptation appears to be strong, judging from the number we generally find in them getting spirituous liquors to drink?

When will farmers learn to make their homes attractive for their boys, and themselves? A few good books, one or more agricultural papers, and last, but not least, a work shop.

I rejoice to say I um a farmer. Although young yet, I find I can keep up with my neighbors. I have always lived on a farm; my father is a good farmer, and he has a nice little workshop, in which I first learned the use of tools. I can mend a plow, wagon or sleigh, or an ox chain, sharpen and temper a crow bar, make a gate and hang it, mend harness, boots, shoes and tin pans, repair or clean a clock or watch, and on a pinch can wash, iron and darn stockings. My apprenticeship was served in my father's workshop on the farm, on rainy days. I find that it has not been much of a lead for me to carry along, and it has given me a love for home, with skill and ingenuity, to keep things nest and in repair, and to make home attractive for myself and family -Tribune and Farmer.
